A little past my 35th birthday, I thought it might be nice to set down systematically some ideas, mostly in areas of human concern.

Isn't Newtonian mechanics a counter-argument to the contention that the universe is patternless?

If genetic engineering will be possible for us in a few decades, then it was possible for alien cultures visiting  $\oplus$  in ages past. Can instinctual aggression be engineered out?

Allegation: dissidents have no constructive alternatives. Response: life of Socrates. 2nd law: easier to destroy than construct viable life styles + political orders  $\therefore$  caution in criticizing? But no alternative being generated. Even Bonhoeffer agrees major change is necessary. But he disagrees on the destination.

Dec. 1, 1969.

Note frog's eye responds to changes in light levels as threats. Perhaps the oldest part of our brain responds to all significant change as threat — possibly a useful adaptation in earlier times, but surely no longer.

Kessler discussion in recent NYT Magazine of 3 co-existing brains — reptile, subprimal mammal, + human. Is id, ego, superego connection too simplistic?

War as a resolution of sexual energy felt by the old towards the young — removing the competition.

History of genocides: Am. Indians, N. + S. America, Bushmen, Australian + Tasmanian aborigines, Jews in many parts of world, Amazon Basin today, Vietnam, Chinese Tatars?, Armenians, etc. If it can be defined as untermenschen it can be exterminated with a free conscience.

If UFO's are hallucinations, it is important that they be studied - such a person has important psychological consequences, by mental waves, by techniques. <sup>astronauts into space</sup>

UFO's (after 4445 talk). Many ideas which are charming if true, which could be splendid to believe: e.g., reincarnation, philosopher's stone, elixir vitae, psychokinesis, precognition, telepathy, time travel, <sup>leaving one's body, becoming one</sup> ~~parapsychological~~ <sup>induction, etc.</sup> If such ideas were verified they would be <sup>of greatest</sup> important to us: there would be new abilities we might have. Maybe we can walk through walls: who's really tried? Or fly without mechanical assistance. Or project <sup>thought</sup> images on unexposed film. But previously because such ideas have been so deeply entangled with us we must take particular pains in critically examining <sup>the</sup> relevant evidence. It is here we are most likely to deceive ourselves. The idea of benign (or hostile) superbeings from other planets visiting @ from elsewhere clearly belongs on such a list of emotion-rich ideas. Also danger of too facile dismissal.

J. R. Burg, "A History of Freedom of Thought" (Oxford U. Press, 1913 et seq.) on Voltaire:

"... he has been sometimes derided on the ground that he only demolished and made no effort to build up where he had pulled down. This is a narrow complaint. It might be replied that when a sewer is spreading plague in a town, we cannot wait to remove it till we have a new system of drains. ... But the true answer is that knowledge, and therefore civilization, are advanced by criticism and negation as well as by construction and positive discovery. When a man has the talent to attack with effect falsehood, prejudice, and imposture, it is his duty, if there are any social duties, to use it."

The caudal bone is near the genitals & the musculature for wagging a tail involves some of the muscles in sexual activity. Are dogs & cats sexually turned on when they wag their tails? Note how nicely this correlates with the nature of the beasts — the dog sexually excited when happy, the cat when angry or irritated.

$\approx 10^{12}$  cells — a human body.  $\approx 10^{12}$ ! ways of arranging them. Genome contains  $\approx 4 \times 10^9$  bits.  $\therefore$ , by Shannon's theorem there is not enough information to specify precisely most of these positions.  $\therefore$  genome contains only general guidelines, not specific directions. A useful approach to the fundamental problem of embryology.

What are Christmas tree ornaments really about? Imagine living in pagan N. Europe; why do we add small spheres to trees? The spheres are clearly symbolic fruit — not oranges, then apples, pears, etc. At the winter solstice ceremony we remind the trees of their fruit to ensure such food at the end of winter. We don't want the trees to forget — we like fruit. We choose midwinter for the ceremony — that's just about when the trees are likely to forget.

Also note Saturnalia, Eostur & Astarte, why chicks & eggs at Easter?, bring the Saturn back in Saturnalia! Linguistics re well. Look at all the unexamined accretions we're carrying around with us.

What is the significance of loyalty, particularly political loyalty? Is it merely support of present policy as enunciated by present political leaders? Short term objectives may work in contradiction to long term objectives. Today's treason may be tomorrow's orthodoxy. And may there not be higher loyalties — some would say to Nation, some would say to individual conscience, some would say to God?

How about a serious answer to Hitler's contention about laws being invented for the protection of the "weak"? Immediate power & the seeds of long-term power may not reside in the same individuals.

Why did I send my Agnes letter to empty — empty newspapers & not to one Congressman? Rectify!

The term "high" itself carries implication of religious experience — as in "on high."

Vegetarians note: immunologically + I bet by eating animal eggs
+ milk are animal not plant.

Smothering of life. ⊕ life only? | Cannibals
eat people — most of us are disgusted.
But vegetarians are disgusted by any meat-eating. <sup>includes</sup> Jews + Moslems by eating some meat
but not others; Moslems eat cows, are horrified of pigs — <sup>so</sup> Hindus eat pigs, are horrified of cows. <sup>Vegetarians eat eggs + milk. Why? Not vegetarians? Dumbfounded?</sup> But Jews reverence all animals. But who's for the plants? Why no feeling at the heartless uprooting of baby turnips?
Who defends the young carrot? <sup>The herbivore? Animal spot?</sup> Grasses, maybe O.K. — the roots remain & they grow again next year. But roots — ugh! However, maybe the wheat hurts when it's harvested.
"No complex nervous system." So, do we know that much about subjective pain? No, consistently forces us to condemn the rice bowl if we condemn the cannibal pot. And shall we not reverence the mineral world as well?
There is no clear dividing line in terms of chemistry. Only reproducers are alone — but how long do we wait to see if reproduction occurs? [Jain story that don't

 Isn't the safest course to reserve all matter + energy? To be aware of the astonishing, diversified, + beautiful universe
 we live in? Must we always kill to live?
 Synthetic organic chemicals may be forced on us, not for reasons of reserve for life, but for much more practical overpopulation reasons.
 It should be possible to create exact taste + texture counterparts of known foods.
 And think of the entirely novel tastes
 + smells that should be possible eventually.
 Like of "natural" foods — free of additives due to insufficient science + inadequate govt safeguards. With enough research, safe + exciting tastes + smells.
 Both molecular; smell-stereochem or is read?
 Also poss. new colors — as w. no colors.
 New sounds like brandy - - Moog synthesizers, etc. A feast for the senses ahead. Also sense synergism + kinaesthesia. Are certain smells noxious because of previous evolutionary exposure?

HCN but not CO? Unlikely. Still it's very interesting that noxious  $\equiv$  unhealthy almost always. Why? Maybe CO too much like O<sub>2</sub> — that's why it's poisonous. Bork on smell? Why are various materials poisonous?
 Bork on that. Note that when we make ~~an~~ a spacecraft to land on O<sub>2</sub>, we make a ~~an~~ organ w. quite analogous senses. But new senses also made — e.g., <sup>UV</sup> spectroscopy or is radiometry.
 These are new senses for humans, but not to birds + pit vipers. Cf. ESP.
 If I into forging up, can amplify w.
 detailed physiology of senses. Also not convergent evolution. Also Helmholtz remark a design of the eye — in Bury I believe.
 Evolutionary sequences of autos or spacecraft
 at first really horseless carriages — then more functional. But historical acco-tions remain. Caesar's clothing — sleeve

 And it always has to respect the past in making the present, many more accretions.
 Cars could start from scratch — but don't;
 they're bound to the past. Ditto spacecraft: Minus 71 crews essentially designed in 1961-3. Here macro-mathematics in the works. Plus a separate creation over in the Soviet Union. The 2 gene pools don't much mix.

Dyson point on genetic drift some as my diversity argument.

Bruce Darg note on e. b. genome depositories - cf. my 1961 NASA proposal. There's too much evolutionary patrimony here to be squandered; this set of sols. to ecological pools - may occur nowhere else in universe. But is e. b. separate like fallout shelters - their prison - itself helps quipitil stimulation? I think not. Repositories of vegetative forms; of frozen nucleic acids - instructions for ribosomes, tRNA, etc; of special strains adapted to e. b. environments.

Note preponderance of biological over physical sciences in this book so far.

Hypothesis: Freud's psychological insights were not due to great courage + self-discipline; they were due to cocaine. Tests: (1) was he using cocaine into his psycho-analytic period? + (2) is cocaine a means, an entry to the unconscious as other hallucinogens are. Note how perfect a German-Hegelian word "psychoanalytic" is. Stenger story on schizophrenia → Jester (one about Orlando Furioso). Note what a cocaine proselytizer Freud was — cf. pot proselyt. syndrome.

Much modern newthink: "Free World," "Dept. of Defense," "suspected Vietnamese outposts."

Othello talks about "a pearl worth all his tribe." In principle, could there be an object on  $\Theta$  worth all our planet? In death cases poss. only if  $\exists$  an external economic system. Interesting plot for story: such an object accidentally lands here; 2 ext. groups seek it ruthlessly.

Santa Claus lives in the <sup>drives reindeer,</sup> frozen north, mysteriously distributes gifts, and is surrounded by elves. What is he? He's an outsize Norse elf!

What does the phrase "Viet Cong" mean - Vietnamese? It's not entirely a Western fabrication, because it appears on N. Vietnamese stamps. Nevertheless, it is used rather than "NLF" because of the barbaric <sup>Comm.</sup> undertones - "King Kong" (Hitler's favored movie, by the way). And the phrase "NLF - the political arm of the Viet Cong" - what then group do we turn around that way? The Bundestag - the political arm of the Wehrmacht. The Falangists - the political arm of the Spanish Army. Nicaragua - the political arm of the Somoza family. It's an attempt to deny any political legitimacy to the NLF.

[1/10/76. NYT

just any indicator of terrorism: Cong Vietnam, not NLF.]

Also: during penetration of perimeter defenses at Chuoi in Laos is called a "terrorist attack" even if only aircraft are destroyed. But, dropping napalm on women & children somewhere we never describe as a terrorist attack. We don't really know how far a free press.

Also note what we call everything else. China is called Red China or Communist China. But State Dept. calls Taiwan China. Also, "East Germany", "North Korea", etc. Also note diff. between the short usages "Russia" + "America": the first is constructive, the second, expressive. Also, in describing crimes, note how often beads or unkept hair are mentioned where possible. I never see a crime report in which the suspect has a crewcut or a redneck. Do you? Language, Propaganda, + the Media. Did the phrase "Viet Cong" gain popularity during U.N.-Congo operation? Cf. NRT Index. Some suffer from as "Dink", Nigger, Wop, Sheenie, Wop, Kike. Note that "Charlie" for VC works the other way. Lots of similar cases in English: to "Welch" on an agreement, Ditch coverage, Ditch threat, etc., etc. Even the word "barbarian" comes from the Greeks making fun of the language of their neighbors: "What's a matter, can't you even speak Greek?"

Dec. 22, 1969

Heinrich Himmler was nauseated at SS machinegunning of KL inmates — so he instituted more humane methods: Cyclon B. Note eyeball-to-eyeball contact in machine-gunning, so clearly described in Romain Gary's <sup>novel</sup> "The Song of Daphnis Cohn." Now we're all (most, anyway) nauseated about Song My — I mean, shooting down women + children... When I was small the pinnacle of barbarism was what the Nazis did at Lidice. But (1) they killed only the men, (2) the killing was in reprisal for Heydrich's assassination, + (3) I believe the town was implicated in the assassination. These factors do not apply to Song My. Gen. Westmouland is still with us. What gets me is not only that we've exceeded mid-War Nazi barbarism (we didn't find out about KLs till later), but that napalm, anti-personnel fragmentation weapons, + high explosives dropped by B-52s on villagers ~~does~~ not produce the same degree of outrage.

The pilot sees no babies being burned:
his conscience is at rest. I was once told that at the National War College an interesting correlation exists: the artillery <sup>opts</sup> for strategic confrontation, the infantry for negotiated settlement of disputes.

Ditto SAC vs. TAC, Polaris submarines vs. PT boat commanders. If you don't see it, killing is OK. Remember that conscience-stretcher of childhood? :

"You get $10,000 if you press this button
— but a million Chinese die if you do"

Why Chinese? Because they're a different race + culture, not too close to my own (this was WWII — the Chinese were our allies); but, much more important, I don't see the consequences to individual humans of my button-pressing. And now we have a real button...

What we need is more realistic portrayals of war + death. Quella theater threats to napalm dogs (as in Providence, R.I., Oct. 15, 1969) are a good start.

Were people ever upset about the possibility of napalming a dog! If not for TV

American barbarism could have produced many worse crimes. But TV could do so much more — it has done so little in the face of what it might do.

"America is the only society to pass from barbarism to decadence without experiencing civilization." Passing not all that obvious.

A good false etymology: decadent — having only ten teeth. It's actually de-cadentia, a down-falling.

Perambulatory inhabited planetoids — go into orbit around a star as if it were a trailer park.

Wasserman + Reynolds in separate discussions have history of nucleosynthesis like this!

Sports: Political ~~tests~~ for championships,
 e.g., Muhammad Ali. Provincial titles:
 World's Series, World's Champion, Miss Universe, Miss World. In the latter two what are the standards of beauty selected?
 Why so young? Why no coverage in U.S.
 of sports other countries excel in?
 Gymnastics, table tennis, fencing, etc.
 Also light weight categories of boxing, Olympic wrestling. Doesn't this selective coverage tend to feed American illusions of invincibility? Wouldn't it be good for us to witness unsentimental coverage of American defeats? Recall ABC's atrocious American losses in the Olympic Games — selection post hoc of events where Americans won, neglect of events where Eastern European athletes excelled, gratuitous political remarks by commentators.
 Also note the disproportionate attention given — e.g., in Super Bowl coverage — to fans + remarks of winners over losers. American athletics gives very little training on losing.

Is Revolution a legitimate goal if no guarantee that what follows is likely to be better than what precedes?
There are places worse than contemporary America.

What is circumcision really about? In Genesis 17 it is the mark of the covenant between God + the ~~Israelites~~ descendants of Abraham. What does God do for the " "? He promises a multitude of descendants + nations, the land of Canaan, + promises he will remain their God.
In return the foreskin of all males is to be removed! Why? The circumcision rite of a Jewish boy is called the "berith," or "briss", Hebrew for "covenant". It's done on the 8th day. Why 8? On the 6th, God made Man, on the 7th he rested; this is to stress
the importance of the covenant.

There are many possible signs of such a covenant — e.g. facial tattooing. Why was circumcision adopted? What God gives — wealth + fertility. Was there any belief that circumcision produces fertility? Does it?

 Might it produce a less sensitive glans penis,
 +  $\therefore$  longer coitus? Even so, how does this have anything to do with fertility? And how could anyone have known about it?

[Note Moslems, also descendants of Abraham - via Ishmael ~~was~~ explicitly not a part of the Covenant: Gen. 17:20. On this puzzling passage was one to be fought?]

It Was the Best, Biggest and Last

A Commentary

By Nicholas von Hoffman

It was the best, it was the biggest, it was the last of the antiwar demonstrations. If it cannot convince the men who make war and peace they can't safely go on with the conflict, then no amount of marching, praying or singing will change their minds.

The young people will turn to other tactics because they've come in supplication and politeness; they've walked like pilgrims, holdin gandles in the windy night, and, standing, one by one, in front of the White House, begged for their lives; they've massed and swarmed and listened in army-sized formations to their ministers and their musicians imprecate peace and life.

There is nothing more they can do to win the minds and hearts of the men who run the American government. Either these men understand the shame and reproach of having tens of thousands of people implore them for life and clemency on the streets, or the youth will turn to other ways of stopping the killing.

Woodstock and Chicago

These enormous scenes of communion and contact will continue. Woodstock was as much responsible for this weekend in Washington as Chicago was. They love the coming together, the touching and sharing of food and bodies, they love the improvising of crash pads and meals and transportation; they love getting high on each other and they dig the feeling that they are part of something very large, that they're doing something very important.

They relish these things but if they can't end the war by providing these warm and affecting experiences for themselves and others, they will use other methods and the methods will work, for this past week has shown that they are stronger than the government.

They've demonstrated they have the motive power, enthusiasm and unity the White House has beseeched the country to manifest. On Tuesday the government asked for a great outpouring and it got empty streets. The people couldn't even be bothered to turn on their headlights. Sure, we support the President but would you mind stepping to one side while we make this putt? We will support the President on the golf courses and in front of TV sets, put on the line for him while we drive to work.

Letter to Senators

Imagine it. The government is reduced to having this letter sent out to the members of the United States Senate:

"How about a big cheer for the great U.S.A.?"

"A committee has been formed to salute a week of national unity and I am proud to serve as their national chairman. There are millions of Americans, of all ages, who make up the silent majority and we are urging them to participate in activities from coast to coast to display unity in America.

"I certainly hope you will accept my invitation to serve as a co-chairman. Please wire your confirmation to me at Hollywood, California, so that we may unite in this program together.

"Warmest regards,

"Bob 'FOR A WEEK OF NATIONAL UNITY' Hope."

This demonstration, the one here in Washington, is the outpouring and support that the White House wanted for itself, but the other side got it. They got it because their people believe in peace and almost nobody's left who believe in this war enough to make a sacrifice for it. The antiwar people achieved unity for the same reasons.

Indescribable Diversity

The demonstration included people of indescribable diversity. The Crazies, the Mad Dogs, the Weathermen and the weatherwomen, Unitarian-Universalist reverends, Trotskyites, Krishna Consciousness mantra-chanters, timid, troubled liberals from sincere liberal arts campuses, worried draftables with no discernible politics, rock lovers, fighters and lovers, careerists and drifters, fraternity boys and commune dwellers.

Without Martha Raye or Bob Hope on the Road to Nowhere they made a unity. They swapped and bartered, fought and intrigued with each other until they could unite on a common course of action. They believed in what they were doing while the government must rely on a mindless, patriotic conditioned reflex, but the bell has been rung and the dog's mouth has watered so often that the trick doesn't work any more.

If after today the war doesn't end immediately these same thousands and their even more numerous supporters will commence the campaign to end it. We will see a tapering off of demonstrations designed to convince public officials to change their minds. Instead the movement will shift its vectors toward direct action.

They will go after the military directly, not to confront it, but to liberate it. The people who marched in Washington don't hate soldiers. But for the grace of a draft board or a student exemption they would be soldiers. Many of them are in ROTC.

Demonstration at Six

The recent demonstration at Ft. Dix, N.J., is a fore-sign of what is to come. Five to seven thousand people marched on the army camp there, not to attack the soldiers but to win them over.

Anyone who's ever talked to a soldier about how he feels when there is a peace demonstration at the gates of his camp dare not discount the possibilities that this new direction will work. The average soldier is a draftee who would never have volunteered. He is the same age as most of the protesters and he comes out of the same youth culture.

What kind of inroads have already been made is impossible to say, but there are signs and underground whisperings that suggest it's more than you might think. The idea sounds impossible but five years ago a peace movement of the present size was unthinkable. The day may come when the privates turn to their commanders and, handing them their rifles, say, "General, if it's so good, you fight it. We'll sit it out."
